Stop parking illegally – or you will be fined

DRIVERS could receive a £100 fine and three points on their licence if they park dangerously outside primary schools.

Mum-of-three Melanie Turnbull decided to take action against cars parking on zig zag lines, yellow lines and drop curbs in School Lane, Haverhill, over fears for the children's safety.

Now, PCSO Kayla Packman, staff from nearby primary schools and other angry parents have joined the effort to get parents parking more considerately.

Melanie, of Atterton Road, said: "We decided to buy cones and block off the areas that are most affected and protect the drop curb, crossing and zig zags."

"But it will only work very temporarily because people have already started parking in between them – it is pure laziness."

Melanie's children Callum, 9, and Evie, 5, attend Burton End Primary School and at drop-off and pick-up times Melanie says she has seen a car nearly hit a child on a zebra crossing, due to another vehicle causing an obstruction.

She and other parents are taking it in turns to set out the cones at 8.40am and take them away at around 3.40pm.

There are a few car parking spaces available near to the Burton End and St Felix Primary School, and Haverhill's Rugby Club at the top of the road has a public car park with around 30 spaces available. But Melanie says parents are "too lazy" to use those spaces and walk the short distance to the school. Instead, they try to park as close to the gates as possible.

Fay Trussler, headteacher at Burton End, said: "We are concentrating on this for the safety of the children – that's what our concern has been; to keep them safe."

Staff at St Felix are joining in with the initiative too in the hope it will have a lasting impact on parking problems.

Officers have the power to photograph motorists who are breaking the law and hand them a £100 fine, which comes with an endorsement of three points.

PCSO Packman said: "At some point, a child is going to get run over, and who is going to take responsibility for that?"

"We are putting things in place for the safety of children – it's been ongoing for years really and their safety could be at risk."

It is hoped that one day the road will be fenced off, leaving space only for the school entrances, a crossing and a potential drop-off zone.

A letter is being sent home to parents before the end of term, warning them to park correctly or face a fine.

Primary school's collection will head off to Philippines

OUR DONATION: Some of the boxes collected at the school.

A COLLECTION organised by a grandmother has finally found a way to reach those in need in the Philippines. The donations have been stored at New Cangle Primary School, Haverhill, and Gurteens after an appeal by Lynn Lansdown captured the hearts of residents.

Parents, staff and friends have been working hard to collect as much as possible – but did not have any transport confirmed to take their aid to those affected by Typhoon Haiyan. Now, the Philippine Nurses Association of the United Kingdom has pledged to send the collection out in their next batch – which could be some time in the next week.

Lynn said: "Some people can't afford to give a lot but we have got a lot of stuff and it's amazing the number of people who have supported it. Thank you to Gurteens for storing it and to Package In for providing boxes."

AN AFTERNOON and evening of seasonal treats is coming to town tomorrow.

Haverhill's Family Christmas Night kicks off at 5pm, with late night shopping and a craft fair at the Arts Centre.

The town's shops are being invited to show their Christmas colours too, with a best-dressed shop competition taking place.

Participants will be judged on the night by Cllr Roger André, the town mayor.

Will Austin, town clerk, said: "We hope that everyone will take part, and deck out their outsides – and their staff."

The High Street will be taken over by fairground rides, charity stalls and exciting street entertainment, including Anton's amazing glow ball juggling show, the giant Oinga Boinga girls, a one-man band.

Christmas tree lights, designed by primary school children across town, will be on display in the Market Square.

DEBRA FOX

They will be switched on, together with the town's tree, at 6.30pm by the pantomime's Snow White, played by Katie Bass.

Westfield School Choir will be there, providing a Christmas sound track for the night.

Katie said: "I'm really excited to be turning on the Christmas tree lights for Haverhill this year."

"It will be my first visit to the town but I've heard great things about it from members of the company who have been before. I'd love as many children as possible to come along and see me."

"But please keep me away from shiny red apples – they bring me out in hives."

Nick Keeble, Arts Centre Manager,

said that a lot of work has gone into improving the town's decorations this year, and that having primary school children design them makes Haverhill stand out.

Mr Keeble said: "For me the highlight – pun intended – will be the decorations designed by children from each of Haverhill's primary schools."

"What better way is there for Haverhill to have a unique Christmas lights display? No other town in the country will have what we have."

The fireworks finale is taking place at 8pm on the Recreation Ground to truly welcome Christmas to Haverhill.

A number of road closures will take place throughout the day, with the High Street, Camps Road and Swan Lane closing from 2-11pm.

Queen Street will also be closed from 10am-11pm, Chantry Road and Mill Road will be closed from 7-9pm and Recreation Road will be closed from 7.30-9pm.

Inmate admits attacking officer

AN INMATE who attacked an officer inside Highpoint Prison has been sentenced to 30 weeks in custody.

Reiss Kirby, 25, had been due to stand trial at Ipswich Crown Court, accused of inflicting grievous bodily harm on an officer at the Stradishall prison.

Before the trial began on December 3, Kirby pleaded guilty to a charge of assault, causing actual bodily harm.

The 25-year-old, now being held at HMP Peterborough, attacked senior prison officer Stephen Fry on May 31 last year. Noel Casey, mitigating, said Kirby regretted causing the incident.

Mr Recorder Charles Makey said he would formally record a verdict of not guilty to assault causing grievous bodily harm and sentenced him to 30 weeks for assault, causing ABH.

Take Sidney the clown home and help a child in need

A KNITTED clown is being raffled off to help a child in need this Christmas.

Sidney Slapstick, knitted by resident Anne Jones, is currently on display at The Craft Basket on Queen Street.

By the end of the month, he will have a new home with a lucky raffle winner.

All of the money raised from tickets sold is going towards a local child who needs help – but they need help in deciding who gets the money. The raffle will run up until Christmas, and tickets cost £1 each.

Sue Vallis, of The Craft Basket, said: "Anne buys all of her knitting wool from us and she's knitting for charity all the time."

"She's a very kind lady, and she wants to make a difference to a local child this Christmas."

Do you know a child in need in the Haverhill area?

Please send your nominations to editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk or call The Craft Basket on 01440 707880.

Visit The Musicians

PUPILS from Samuel Ward Academy are preparing for their winter show.

The production is the first by new drama teacher Matthew Russell, and is being performed at the school from December 10-13.

The Musicians follows the story of a school orchestra, who are preparing to give a concert in Moscow at the European Festival of Youth, playing Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony.

When their instruments are impounded by Russian customs, Alex, the boy who cleans the hall, comes up with a plan to save the day.

Tickets are available from the school office, and cost £4 for adults and £3 for children.

Work to start on Burton Centre

A COMMUNITY centre is going to be transformed into a support facility for patients and their families.

Construction work is set to begin on the Burton Centre, in Camps Road, to change it into the first ever community outreach centre for St Nicholas Hospice Care.

The building will become an access point for people living with life-shortening illnesses, such as cancer, multiple sclerosis and motor neurone disease, so they don't have to travel to the main hospice site in Bury St Edmunds.

Work is expected to start in the next few weeks.

Kevin Clements, Hospice Director of Fundraising and

DEBRA FOX

Marketing, said: "We are delighted that we are now in a position to start work on transforming the Burton Centre into an outreach centre which will benefit the whole Haverhill community."

Services on offer at the centre will include counselling, bereavement support, advice and complementary therapies. A wheelchair lift is to be installed.

New meeting rooms and offices will be on offer to members of the public to use, by prior arrangement.

Barbara Gale, Hospice CEO, said: "We have chosen the town because of its large population and its growing need for more services for those at the end of their lives.

"The Burton Centre is an ideal building in which to deliver hospice care. The very fact that it is already connected to the community and used by other groups will help us to reach more people."

St Nicholas Hospice Care was awarded more than £300,000 in Department of Health funding to convert the building, and the lease was signed at the end of November.

Haverhill Library and the registrars' service will both remain in the building – they will be open and accessible as usual throughout the work.

Kenny's story to be released this month

A DEBUT author inspired by the stories of one man is releasing a book in his honour.

Philip Riley, of Beaumont Court, Haverhill, has spent 30 years putting together the exploits of an armoured in the Royal Air Force.

The book, Hard Calibre, focuses on Kenny Butterworth's journey through the Second World War in the UK, South Africa and India.

Philip pledged to tell the RAF man's tale and was only kicked into action after hearing of Kenny's death.

The pair worked together in the 1970s, and the author made visits to Kenny's home before abandoning the project due to lack of time.

Philip, 58, said: "When my wife and I went to Norwich and formed 50 per cent of the mourners at his cremation, after his wife and daughter, I had to address my inner torment. I resolved to fulfill my original promise to him, regardless of the time or cost by making an absolute commitment to myself this time, to write Kenny's story."

Hard Calibre is being released by The Memoir Club on December 18.

'If I can help just one child, it's all worth it'

DEBRA FOX

A MUM-of-two is receiving an award after dedicating 10 years to helping children develop their skills through Cubs.

Sharon Eames, 50, was inspired to get involved after watching her son Tom, now 18, grow in confidence after joining the organisation.

Her husband David died in 2000 from three brain tumours, and she enrolled Tom in the Cubs to help overcome his shyness.

Sharon, of Mill Road, Kedington, said: "He was very shy, and Cubs made a real difference to him, and to his life."

"He has gone on to study chemistry at Leeds University and he leads a very full and active life – I have a lot to thank Scouting for."

"If I can make any one thing better for any child that joins the group, then that's my job done."

Sharon is being awarded the Chief Scout Commendation for Good Service for her work as Akela and Cub Scout Leader to 1st Kedington Cub Pack.

She will receive the reward at a pack meeting in the New Year – though the children don't know yet.

Sharon said: "I didn't want to say anything about the award because all of us work together – it's not just about me."

"I might lead them, but I have an absolutely brilliant team to work with."

The most rewarding part of the job, Sharon said, is seeing the transformation in the children over two-and-a-half years.

During their time at the Cubs, members learn a lot of outdoor activities in working towards the seven challenge badges they need to complete before moving on to scouts.

Sharon, who has another son Ben, 16, said: "The pleasure I get from seeing the children achieve things is why I do it – the day that goes will be the day I don't do it anymore."

David and Susie Bush, leaders of 1st Kedington Scout

Pack, are receiving the Chief Scout Merit for Good Service in the new year too.

Cubs is open to boys and girls from 8 to 10 and a half.

Kedington Cubs meet every Wednesday at Kedington Community Centre between 6.30-8pm.

They are full at the moment, but may have places coming in the spring.

Slimmers raise hundreds for Christmas

FUNDRAISERS at Haverhill's Slimming World groups have made enough money to give 14 people their dinner this Christmas.

The groups, which meet on Tuesday and Wednesday at The New Croft, Chalkstone Way, have been pooling their loose change in a bid to pay for Christmas lunches at the Salvation Army.

The charity is hosting a lunch for those who would otherwise be alone.

The day will start with worship at 10.30am, followed by dinner and entertainment.

Each guest to the Salvation Army on Christmas Day will also receive a small present.

Tania Watson, Slimming

World consultant, said: "We hoped to raise enough for five dinners, at approximately £21 a head, so we are overwhelmed to be able to support 14 local people this Christmas."

Those wishing to attend can book a place by calling 01440 705247 during office hours by December 13.

Closing the High Street will hit the disabled

I REFER to the closure of our High Street. I am strongly against it because it takes away people's human rights to be independent, especially the ones who are disabled. Even if they have a Blue Badge they still may not be able to walk from a car park. People need some dignity and at the moment they can park near to the shops and go and choose an item for themselves. That will be taken away if the High Street is closed to traffic. Life is difficult enough as it is for them. Please don't let us take away the small things that give them a little independence and dignity. Dee Ketteridge

Don't break the law

I THOUGHT I would take the time to share my thoughts on Haverhill's policing regarding enforcement of traffic orders. Firstly I have noticed a pattern of blame regarding enforcement of traffic regulations... 'we need a traffic warden' etc from many residents, yet the police and the county council say 'no we can't have one, let alone afford one'. Suffolk County Council seems to decide what's best for us; double yellow lines, traffic orders, but when it comes to the crunch who actually enforces the orders? It's supposed to be the police – that's their role in society to uphold the law. But what do we get... a half-hearted effort. I was told recently that 92 tickets were issued in the High Street since the last SNT priority – is that all? In three months? I walked up the High Street on Friday and counted 30 cars in the morning and at least 35 to 40 in Queen Street to the top of the High Street at the end of the day and also it's about time the people of Haverhill actually got the message to parking illegally is forbidden in most towns up and down the land so why do it on your own doorstep? 15 or so years ago this wouldn't have happened in Haverhill when John the traffic warden was about – he was like Marmite, you either liked him ... or not. What we need is a wake-up call and statement from the police "break the law and you will be prosecuted". Simple as that. Tony Adams

Waste of money

I STRONGLY object to Haverhill Town council wasting hundreds of pounds on what seems to have become an annual winter firework display on the recreation ground. Understandably few spectators bother to turn out into the December cold and the display is all over in 15 minutes – having taken a team all day to set up. If, as seems to be the case, the council has spare money burning a hole in its pocket at the end of the year than I suggest a good cause would be to give it to the town's Foodbank – that help could be of tangible comfort to a few

DAVID Hack, who is the British Trust for Ornithology Garden BirdWatch Ambassador for Suffolk, sent us this beautiful photograph of a goldfinch. David wrote: "During the 19th century the craze for keeping Goldfinches as cage birds decimated the British population of this delightful little finch. "Fortunately the trapping of Goldfinches has been banned in this country for many decades, allowing their numbers to recover so that they are now quite common garden visitors. "They are daily visitors to my garden throughout the year where they feed on sunflower hearts."

Living in fear

I HAVE just read the Haverhill Weekly News front page. I sometimes have to come from work at 2am and live on one of the estates. I have to look over my shoulder with heart racing walking from my car to my house in darkness and struggle to put the key in the door with hands shaking because of fear. I think if the alternate street lights from the roundabout where the lighted structure is could be switched off and have some of the lights on the estates switched on that would benefit people living on estates. I do not see the rationale of having street lights on roads for people in cars and total darkness in places where people live! Zenzo Silape
Haverhill

An ill conceived idea

DESPITE their 'concerns' and 'worries', the councillors of Haverhill have all agreed that its OK for 60% more traffic to be redirected through the residential areas of Mill Road, Mill Hill, Recreation Road, Chauntry Road and Helions Park Avenue in a further bid to prop up the failing idea of a traffic-free High Street. Did the 'Safer Neighbourhood' group think about how 'safe' these small roads would be with the increased heavy traffic flow, bearing in mind that there is an old people's home in Mill Road, and a children's play area on the corner of the recreation ground. Have they taken into account the ensuing parking problems along Recreation Road – over 70ft of parking space will be lost due to double yellow lines. Are any of the 'concerned' and 'worried' councillors planning to visit this potentially 'unsafe' neighbourhood, to address the concerns and worries of its residents? Or will they not be visiting us again until they want our vote at next election in 2015? Our roads are congested enough without more traffic being forced through them, but pedestrianisation seems to be doggedly pursued at any cost. And thinking about cost, as a tax payer, I'm wondering how much needs to be spent to implement this Experimental Traffic Regulation Order, and how the experiment be deemed a success or a failure. Will a traffic-free High Street also exclude disabled drivers? The pedestrianisation of Haverhill has proved to be an ill-conceived idea which has been problematic from the start. Many argue that it has contributed to the decline of shops in the town; others say that it doesn't work due to cost of car parking, and the police don't think it's their job to monitor the illegal parking and issuing of parking tickets. Perhaps Haverhill High Street just isn't suitable for pedestrianisation, after all it was originally the only main road through the town, but whatever the reason for its failure, there comes a time when enough is enough. If the experimental traffic order isn't successful what happens then? Is there a plan B, or will the long and sorry saga continue to be dragged out for another 30 years? So, if Suffolk County Council has some money to spare, instead of spending it on Traffic Regulation Orders, why not use it to open up the High Street, reinstate some kerbstones, and install a couple of zebra crossings? As a life-long resident I can't believe that the people of Haverhill are happy to forgo safety in other streets of the town, providing the High Street is deemed traffic free. So I'd like to suggest that the job of the Safer Neighbour group is to maximise safety on all our town's roads, and not to prioritise some over others. Wendy Williams

We're in it together?

FOLLOWING a recent article in a national paper about 340 MPs on all sides of the house claiming expenses for gas and electric bills from the tax payer, I checked the list and found our West Suffolk MP Matthew Hancock had claimed part of his bill which was £48.84. Feeling annoyed, I sent an e-mail to him and asked him to explain to his constituents why he felt the need to claim for part of his gas or electric bill from the tax payer when hard-working families in West Suffolk will be having to make a choice this winter to either eat or heat. I received a letter from Mr Hancock explaining that he is a strong supporter of MPs' spending being transparent and that he tries to keep his bills to the tax payer to the absolute minimum and that he pays most of his electric bill himself. He then went on to tell me how he switched suppliers to get a better deal and how I and others should do the same to make it a more competitive market. To say I wasn't happy with this response is an understatement. Here is an MP who earns well over the average wage and has just been awarded a £10, 000 a year pay rise and he wants the tax payer to pay £48.84 towards his electric bill. I have since seen on a website that the electric bill is only the tip of the iceberg. He has claimed part of his water bill, claimed for telephone usage/rental and we are also paying his full TV licence at £145.50 and – get this – the tax payer is even paying for house insurance at £175.96 when there are lots of hard working families who can't afford to insure their own homes. Yet some of their tax goes towards paying his. So what does Mr Hancock mean when he says he keeps bills to the tax payer to the absolute minimum! As I explained when I wrote to him, I and millions of other hard earning Tax payers pay our taxes to help run the country; ie defence, NHS, welfare; what we do not pay our taxes for is MPs' lifestyles and if these examples I gave are not to do with MPs' lifestyles then I don't know what is. I also put it to Mr Hancock that as one Tory MP gave back the gas and electric bill money that he claimed as he knew he shouldn't have claimed because it was wrong, then surely it follows that all claims for heating is wrong – and would he be paying his back? As I'm sure you can guess, I'm still waiting for a reply on that one! As for his other reply there was no sign of any wrongdoing from Mr Hancock or that he would not claim for his home electric again. As a tax payer living in West Suffolk I would like to take this opportunity to ask again that Mr Hancock explains to his constituents why he feels it's fine to make the claims I've talked about in this letter from hard working tax payers! I'll end this letter by reminding your readers of the the Tory message 'we're all in it together'! Mark Dorey

Community budget is a great example

DEBRA FOX

THE community budget success of Haverhill was presented at a national conference.

Sarah Howard, Chairman of the ONE Haverhill board, met with ministers and officials at the 7th annual Communities Conference on November 21.

Days later, she also attended a ministerial round table event to discuss how the Government could contribute further to community budget schemes.

Haverhill was one of 12 pilot locations chosen by the government to trial a community budget scheme, which gives local residents the chance to have a say on how money is spent in their area.

The town's budget, which was created by ONE Haverhill after a consultation and research period with residents, is being used to create a one stop shop for youth services in the town.

Around 600 replies were received during the consultation, and local people also ruled that they wanted more eyes and ears on Haverhill's streets to report problems.

Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Charities, Social Enterprise and Volunteering Nick Hurd MP and TOWN PLAN: Sarah Howard, centre, at the Communities Conference in London.

Minister of State for Crime Prevention Norman Baker MP were just some of those present to hear of Haverhill's success.

Mrs Howard said: "This was a great opportunity to shout nationally about the great work organisations in Haverhill are doing and how we are working together for the good of the community."

"Nick Hurd was particularly interested in involving Chambers and businesses and they all appreciated that one of the successes of the pilots is that people care about their immediate community and are willing and able to put some time into it.

"We are proud of the achievements and I was privileged to represent such a fantastic partnership."

The Community Budget scheme, now re-named our place, is set to be expanded across other areas due to its successful pilot.

Imagination rewarded by college

ENTERPRISE week at West Suffolk College created almost 60 inventive business pitches.

Students across the college were invited to develop a product and think about promoting it before presenting it to a panel of judges.

First prize of an iPad mini and a mentoring session with Andrew Bates, Dragons' Den entrepreneur, was awarded to 17-year-old Philip Johnson, of Thurlow.

Philip's Cycleheat idea – a range of heated equipment for cyclists including saddle covers and foot warmers – impressed judges, including Jan Cavell of Haverhill-based Jan Cavell Furniture company.

Other prize-winning ideas included a brand of tea for children, specially designed T-shirts for charity and a smartphone app to keep track of elderly relatives.

Vans hit in spate of thefts

A NUMBER of vehicle thefts and a garage burglary have taken place on the same night.

A catalytic converter was stolen from a Mercedes Sprinter van in Allington Walk, Haverhill, between 6pm on December 3 and 4.45am on December 4.

The exhaust was also stolen.

A second Mercedes Sprinter van, parked in Rushmere Place, was similarly targeted on the same night between 8pm and 7am.

Between 7.30pm and 7.30am on the same date a grey Peugeot Roubaix mountain bike and Makita power drill were stolen after a garage at Mustards Gapp was broken into.

A Vauxhall Vivaro van, parked in Hamlet Road, was also targeted and two cordless drills were stolen from inside.

Damage was caused to one of its windows.

If you have any information about these incidents, contact Suffolk Police on 101.

You can also call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Support for rape victims

VICTIMS of rape are being encouraged to come forward and report incidents.

Police forces across the country are taking part in a week-long initiative to highlight how rape and sexual offences are dealt with and the support victims should expect.

Suffolk Police has a dedicated unit, the Gemini Team, to deal with offences of rape.

The county also has a Sexual Assault Referral Centre (SARC) which provides access to a forensic examination, counselling and support – without an obligation to report an offence to the police.

Further information, visit suffolk.police.uk/timetostop or theferns-suffolk.org.uk.

SNT gets ready for online vote

VOTES for policing priorities are going online for the first time next week.

Haverhill's Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) meeting on Monday is going to include an online vote in a bid to get a wider view on what residents want to see.

The meeting, which takes place from 7-9pm at the Arts Centre, will be streamed online and viewers can make their priority choice from home.

Sergeant Gary Miller, the SNT's new sergeant, said: "As people arrive, they will be given a pro-forma piece of paper where they can record their priorities."

"They will be counted and whittled down into nine priorities – and some of those may well be some that have come from online."

People present at the meeting and those watching online will then have their chance to vote on the nine priorities, and the top three will be carried forward for the next quarter.

Sgt Miller says that voters may take a few meetings to get used to the new process, but the team remains hopeful that the digital choice will result in some new priorities.

The current priorities, as voted for in September, are anti-social behaviour in Bedford Court, Clayhive Drive, Clements Close and Clements Drive, speeding vehicles in the High Street, and parking on the pavement in town – especially on the High Street.

Officers have carried out more than 100 patrols on the Clements Estate.

Sgt Miller said: "We want to get into something we can resolve with our partners, rather than just going over the same."

"I want to make sure that we do our part to resolving the issue in the High Street – I don't think enforcement will be the solution, but we want to do what we can."

Since September, the police handed out between 150 and 160 fixed penalty notices to drivers in Haverhill. Around 130 of these happened in the last month.

Regardless of priorities, Sgt Miller has said that enforcement work will continue to monitor speeding and parking in the High Street.

Visit haverhillvote.co.uk to submit your priority ahead of the meeting, and log in at 7pm on December 9 to make your choices.

What are your priorities?

New £500k centre for doctor training

MEDICAL students will get the best education possible in a new £500,000 unit at West Suffolk Hospital.

Construction of the building, next to the hospital's education centre, has been jointly funded by the hospital and the Clinical School of Medicine at Cambridge University.

Students can start using the unit in early 2014, and a donation from the Friends of West Suffolk Hospital paid for a state of the art patient simulator, to give them a hands-on experience.

Dr John Clark, consultant physician and lead for medical student training, said: "The new building will be almost double the size of our existing unit, and will give us much more flexibility to provide training for medical students and refresher courses for nursing staff and junior doctors.

Grant Greetham, chairman of the Friends, said the group are delighted at being able to help with funds.

GIFTS: Staff Sgt Sid Wilson with the pupils from Samuel Ward.

STUDENTS and staff visited a barracks to hand over some Christmas shoeboxes full of treats.

Pupils from Samuel Ward and their families packed 178 boxes to be sent to troops serving abroad. Their chosen regiment is the 17th squadron, based at Carver Barracks in Saffron Walden.

The soldiers will receive their packages in Afghanistan in time for Christmas.

Dawn Burford, Learning Coach, said: "Samuel Ward Academy has a long established history of caring for others through our core school values and is proud to be able to thank our brave soldiers who are so far away from their home and families."

Staff Sgt Sid Wilson was also there on the day to meet the children.

Two men jailed for wallet and phone theft

DEBRA FOX

ROBBERS who stole a mobile phone and wallet from a motorist have been jailed.

Luke Perry, 22, of Cangle Junction, Haverhill, and Stephen Pryce, 21, of Sorrel Walk, Haverhill, forced a man sitting in his car to hand over his mobile phone and wallet.

Perry repeatedly hit the man in the face, causing a cut to his lip which needed stitches, the court was told.

The man's other facial injuries from the incident, which took place in July, forced him to take a week off from work.

Michael Crimp, prosecuting, said that when police visited Perry's home they found the victim's bank card as well as the stolen wallet and phone.

Both men pleaded guilty to robbery, and Pryce asked for 14 other offences to be taken into account.

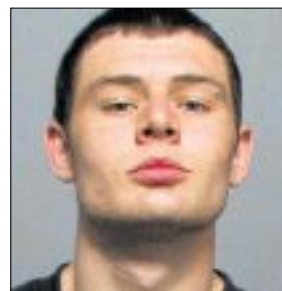

The 21-year-old committed the robbery while on bail for stealing £1,290 worth of jewellery from a friend's mother.

He pawned the necklace and pendant for £82 and it has never been recovered.

Richard Potts, mitigating for Pryce, said: "This is a young man who has fallen victim to the use of drugs over a period of years.

"It has been a problem over the last few years when he has found himself more and more reliant on these drugs, stealing and being dishonest to fund that need."

Pryce has already spent three Christmases and birthdays in GUILTY: Luke Perry, top, and Stephen Pryce have been jailed custody for other offences.

Ian James, mitigating for Perry, said his client had an "unsettled" early life, and wanted to make a change.

Judge John Devaux ruled that the offending was so serious that it required immediate custody.

Perry was sentenced to 36 months and Pryce to 40 months on November 28 at Ipswich Crown Court.

Do you eat lunch at your desk?

EMPLOYEES who eat lunch at their desk are being encouraged to take a proper break to avoid weight gain.

Live Well Suffolk has warned that those lunching "at-desko" are not focusing on the quality of their food and will often feel the need to snack later on in the day.

Basing meals on starchy carbohydrates such as wholemeal bread or pasta will help you to feel full, and snacking on fruit will keep away unwanted calories.

Heather Osborn, Live Well Suffolk dietician, said: "It's really important that people try and get out of the office or at least away from their desks at lunchtime."

"Going for a short walk will get your body active, burn some calories and help prepare your mind for the afternoon ahead."

"At Live Well Suffolk we run a range of activities and courses that can help people eat healthier and break away from bad habits."

Visit livewellsuffolk.org.uk/lunch for lunch time recipe cards.

I will not let bi-polar

LOCKED in a secure unit, under a 24-hour watch, Paul Fuller thought his life was over. He had a good job, a lovely wife, a new daughter – and he'd lost it all in the blink of an eye.

"I wasn't eating, wasn't drinking, wasn't functioning as a normal human being," he says, shaking his head. "I thought that was it, that I was going to die. I really did."

Though he didn't know it at the time, Paul was suffering from bi-polar disorder; at the end of a manic phase – which had seen him take a huge leap and set up his own business – he'd crashed into a black hole of despair.

"I was an HGV driver and I'd decided to go self-employed," he explains. "I got a lorry all painted up, went to see it, came home and just went absolutely ape."

"I can't remember to this day what I did. All I know is that it wasn't very nice..."

"The first thing I do remember is the police coming to the house to take me away."

These days, it's hard to imagine Paul scaling such heights or plumbing such depths: frank, funny and warm, he comes across as both laid-back and incredibly level-headed.

"I've had eight years without a relapse, touch wood," says Paul, leaning forward to pat the coffee table. "I've come a long way in those eight years. And I am very proud of that."

Paul is sharing his story to raise awareness of bi-polar disorder – he says, though things have improved, there is still a stigma surrounding mental illness – and also fly the flag for Cambridge charity Re-Use.

Formerly known as Cambridge SOFA, it's a largely volunteer-run service which helps people on low incomes furnish their homes.

"I furnished my whole house thanks to Re-Use; I came out of hospital with nothing to my Bi-polar disorder has made life a rollercoaster for Paul Fuller. Here, he talks to Alice Ryan about the highs, the lows, and finally finding health and happiness name," says Paul, currently taking a coffee break in the furniture showroom.

"Then I started volunteering here, as a driver collecting donations. It started just as something to do in the daytime, but it opened so many new doors."

"More than anything, it made me feel worthy: it feels good to be doing something for the community, to be giving something back."

With hindsight, Paul believes he's been bi-polar since he was a child. "I used to get quite physical with my two brothers, punching them and hitting them."

"Now I think that was the first sign: this rage would be there one minute, then it was just gone."

A form of depression, bi-polar disorder manifests as extreme mood swings.

"You have massive highs and massive lows," explains Paul.

"With the highs you just keep going up and up until everything's technicolour; it's brilliant, it really is."

"I'd love to have a high again – but I couldn't stand the low, and what goes up must come down..."

"The lows are dark, black, really horrible; something you don't ever want to be associated with. You don't want to get out of bed, let alone get dressed and make a cup of tea."

"You don't want to do anything – and that can go on for weeks at a stretch."

Previously known as manic depression, bi-polar disorder is more common than you might imagine: according to NHS figures, one in every hundred people in the UK is bi-polar.

The exact cause of the condition is not known, but periods of extreme stress and major life-changes are believed to be triggers, along with genetic and chemical factors.

Paul's childhood was, he concedes, 'not the happiest'. Moving out of home aged 5, to live with his grandparents, he says a troubled relationship with his father was at the root.

"He had what I called at the time 'manic spells'; now I think they're very similar to the episodes I've had. But we never saw eye-to-eye."

At 11, after his parents divorced, Paul moved back in with his mum and things seemed to settle down: "School was good. I did what I wanted to do, concentrated on my art."

"I used to love the political cartoons in The Sun; the first thing I ever drew freehand was a picture of Ted Heath with a pipe..."

It was after leaving school, and joining the army, that Paul's mental health deteriorated sharply.

His first tour was to Northern Ireland, at the height of the troubles: "We came across a lot of violence: petrol bombs, riots."

"You'd be walking along the road, minding your own business, and get bottles and stones thrown at you. It was a very hostile environment."

"I was only 19 and I just didn't want to be there. I became fixated on the fact something bad was happening back home and it overtook everything."

"I wasn't concentrating on my job; I was making silly mistakes and putting the other guys at risk."

Osteoporosis fracture risk scans

Osteoporosis is common in post-menopausal women and also in older men and fractures can cause pain, disability and loss of independence. 3 out of 10 hip fractures prove fatal. Osteoporosis can be prevented if weak bones are detected early enough but scans for assessing risk of future osteoporotic fracture are not always readily available. However, you can now have a non-invasive scan for £22.

beat me

"One day we were running along and my webbing – with all the ammunition strapped to it – just fell off, because I hadn't fitted it properly."

"I was taken off the streets and three weeks later sent home."

Once back home, Paul discovered something bad had indeed happened: one of his brothers had been diagnosed with lymphatic cancer.

"Mum hadn't told me because she didn't want to worry me."

"He was given three months to live – but thankfully he survived and he's still doing well now."

Deciding to change tack and follow his childhood dream of becoming a lorry driver, Paul got his HGV licence and for a while his life was on an even keel.

"There's a great sense of achievement, a sense of control, when you're driving an HGV. From the age of 7 I'd wanted to drive something big and beautiful – and that's what I was doing."

Paul married and had his daughter, Natasha, now 23. But then, when she was barely a year old, his first 'major episode' hit and both his marriage and career crumbled.

"After that first spell in hospital I was out for a few months, in for a few months. I was in denial, to be honest."

"I didn't want to accept there was anything wrong, and I also didn't want to take medication."

"I thought the doctors were trying to take over my brain, make me a different person – like something you'd see in a film."

"So as soon as I had the opportunity, I'd stop taking the pills."

During one of his better spells, Paul married again and had a second child, Carl, now 12.

But then, almost 10 years ago now, he had 'a serious breakdown', which saw him spend a month on remand in prison and nine months in a secure unit.

"It was bad. Very bad. Again I had a massive black out and all these accusations were made..."

"While I was in hospital I made a vow that, no matter what, I was going to take my medication from now on – and I was never going back to hospital."

Thanks to a combination of self-discipline and a carefully monitored treatment programme – which includes a bespoke prescription and keeping a 'mood diary' which his case worker assesses at the end of every month – Paul has kept his promise to himself.

"There have been ups and downs, life's like that, but nothing serious."

One of his meds is Lithium which, he explains, 'keeps my brain cells separate: they used to mingle and have a party...'

The irony is, he adds: "For 12 years I thought the pills would change me for the worse; now, after taking them for eight years, I think I'm a better person than I was before."

Paul says he polices his state of mind constantly. "I picture a box in my head and I have to keep myself inside that box."

"At the bottom is level five, which is 'Okay', six is 'Pretty good', seven is 'Very good' and eight and nine are 'Party time'."

"Any mood outside that box is dangerous: if I can feel myself rising too high I take a deep breath, do some reading, do a jigsaw. I level myself out."

As well as losing out on time with his children – while he was in and out of hospital he had access only rarely – Paul also rues having his HGV licence revoked because of his illness.

"I'm about to reapply, after eight years without an episode," he smiles. "And the kids are great too: I see them both once a fortnight."

Settled into a bungalow in Little Eversden, with his rescued Staffie-cross-Jack Russell Bruce ("Dogs are good for you in so many ways"), Paul is about to move in with new girlfriend Ann.

The couple met in the queue for the Number 75 bus in Cambridge: "We call it the Love Bus now! She's beautiful, wonderful..."

"I told her all the bad stuff and she just says 'That's not you now. That's all in the past.'"

Does Paul ever feel angry about the impact bi-polar disorder has had on his life?

"Sometimes I feel angry at myself, for not waking up to the facts sooner, not taking my medication... I feel like I lost a lot of time."

"But, though it's taken its time, everything's working out now. You just have to stay positive."

"Even when you're in the darkest of tunnels, there's a tiny glimmer of light at the end – you just have to keep moving towards it."

Spot the difference.

Children's handmade treasures mean a cash boost for foodbank

HANDMADE artefacts from primary school pupils made money for a foodbank.

Year 3 and 4 children from Westfield Primary, in Haverhill, opened an Anglo-Saxon museum and encouraged parents to make a purchase.

Their exhibition was filled with handmade treasure boxes, which were packed with shields, swords, coins and jewellery.

Now, they have handed over their donation of £35 to Ann Merrigan, the town's foodbank manager.

Mrs Merrigan said: "Getting the donation from the school was an absolute bonus."

"They have raised a lot for us through their Harvest Festival so to get money as well was a bonus. This is money that school kids have raised for their own community."

Westfield pupils donated 171 kilos of food to the bank in October.

The museum raised £71.55 in total, and half of the money is going towards an end-of-term treat for the children.

Jill Lightfoot, deputy head, thanked the children for their "fantastic" work and parents for their support.

Christmas All Wrapped Up

Some super-jolly festive tipplables

CHRISTMAS is almost upon us, which means it's time to get fancy with the tipplables. Here are a few recipes for seasonal drinks that are guaranteed to give Santa's ruddy red cheeks a run for their money.

Whether you're throwing a party, or just want to enjoy a couple of drinks on the sofa, it's worth making the effort this Christmas.

You might need a couple of special drinks as well, so here's some suggestions which won't trouble even the most amateur bartender.

If you're making a few of these drinks at a time, then you just need to remember to multiply the quantities accordingly.

All you'll need, then, is some ice (and for quality and quantity's sake, it's probably best to buy a bag in from the supermarket), a couple of martini glasses, although these aren't essential if you don't mind going without, and a cocktail shaker.

NICE: Baileys cinnamon spice

Chin chin!

COINTREAU WINTER BERRY FIZZ

50ml Cointreau
10ml Almond syrup
(This can be made in advance by using a cup of water, two cups of sugar and half a teaspoon of almond extract. Place the water in a pan, bring it to a boil, add the sugar, and keep stirring it while it dissolves. Then remove it from the heat and add the extract. Allow to cool, then refrigerate before using.)

3 or 4 fresh blackberries
20ml lemon juice
Soda water
Shake and strain the ingredients into a glass, then top with soda water. Garnish with a cinnamon stick and lemon peel.

CLOVE KISS GIN & TONIC TWIST

50ml Bombay Sapphire (infused with blood orange and cloves)
100ml tonic water
2tsp caster sugar
1 green cardamom pod
For the blood orange-infused gin:

Take a bottle of Bombay Sapphire gin and pour out 50ml. Replace with 35ml of fresh blood orange juice, eight large peels from the skin of a blood orange and 10 cloves (adjust to taste). Replace cap, shake well, and place in fridge until you're ready to drink it, but for at least 24 hours.

For the flavoured sugar, take the seeds from one green cardamom pod and place in a pestle. Crush well with the mortar until there's a fine powder and then add a couple of teaspoons of caster sugar. Mix well with a teaspoon. Reserve to one side on a saucer.

Take a chilled balloon glass. Wipe some blood orange juice on the rim of the glass, then turn the glass upside down and roll the rim around the saucer of cardamom infused caster sugar until it's fully covered. Shake off any excess.

Turn the glass the right way up and fill with cubes of ice, being careful not to knock off the sugar. Pour in 50ml of the blood orange and clove-infused Bombay Sapphire. Stir briefly.

Top the glass with 100ml of tonic water, being careful to retain the fizz. Stir again very briefly. Finally, add a wheel of blood orange, studded with five cloves, to the top of the glass.

BAILEYS CINNAMON SPICE

25ml Baileys Hazelnut flavour
25ml Baileys Original
20ml Smirnoff vanilla vodka (Or make your own with plain Smirnoff and ¼tsp of vanilla extract)

120ml milk
1 stick cinnamon
Ground cinnamon to garnish

Fill a jug or cocktail shaker with ice.

Measure both of the Baileys, vodka and milk into the jug or cocktail shaker (if you don't have the flavoured Baileys, use 50ml of Baileys Original instead).

Shake the mixture vigorously until the surface of the cocktail shaker feels chilled, or stir for several minutes to get the same effect.

Use a cocktail strainer to strain the mixture into a martini glass.

Sprinkle cinnamon powder on the surface of the drink, and place a cinnamon stick at an angle in the glass to garnish.

Evening with Ian Rankin

FIFE-BORN bestselling novelist Ian Rankin is visiting Cambridge next week as part of a Heffers crime event, to chat to Cambridge local and fellow crime writer Alison Bruce.

Up for discussion will be his latest novel, Saints of the Shadow Bible, the most recent instalment in his Rebus series, tracking the career and cases of the grizzled juggernaut of the title cop.

Old nemeses arise, a suspicious car accident throws worrying light on the detective's own past and starts to make him question ties to his former crime-fighting mates. Just how deep does the corruption go? We're hoping Bruce finds out...

Rankin's career as a writer began with comic books aged 8-9-years-old. "What comics represented were affordable literacy," he explains. "If you only had a few pennies in your pocket you could still buy a comic and read it, and it was a wonderful rung on the ladder that got me reading lots of different things."

Why does he think Rebus touches a chord with fans? "I wish I knew. The books weren't an immediate success. It took five, six or even seven Rebus novels before I was making any money, but he interested me as a character. I thought he was challenging; he's complex, fallible, and that seemed to chime with readers."

It's going to be Rankin's last public appearance for a while as he's disappearing to write – don't miss him.

• Ian Rankin in conversation with Alison Bruce, St Andrews Baptist Church, St Andrews Street, Cambridge, Tuesday, December 10 at 7pm. Tickets £8 from ian-rankin.eventbrite.co.uk.

FROZEN

certificate PG, 1h48m

LOOSELY based on The Snow Queen by Hans Christian Andersen, Frozen proves that Disney's animated heroines have unquestionably come of age.

Long gone are the rose-tinted days when princesses waited patiently for Prince Charming to sweep them off their feet or save them from some grim fate. Now, independent and self-assured heroines are just as smart and resourceful as their male contemporaries... and they don't need the love of a man to affirm their self-worth.

Frozen is a terrific fairytale adventure that melds old-fashioned values with state-of-the-art visuals and a rousing musical score with infectious songs by husband-and-wife team Robert Lopez and Kristen Anderson-Lopez.

Every beautifully coloured and crafted frame is crammed with wit and joy, drawing in audiences of all ages to the story of two sisters battling against both the elements and their fears to claim their rightful place on the throne.

Director Jennifer Lee and Chris Buck don't let the pace flag and the 108 minutes pass in a blur of laughter, tears and frost-bitten action sequences, that look especially stunning in 3D.

As children, Anna (voiced by Kristen Bell) and Elsa (Idina Menzel) love to play together, taking full advantage of Elsa's ability to create ice and snow from her fingertips. When accident late one night almost ends in disaster, the King (Maurice LaMarche) agrees to wipe Anna's memory so she forgets about her sibling's hidden talents.

At the same time, Elsa retires from public gaze, fearful that she will hurt someone else with her powers.

When the King and Queen are subsequently lost at sea, Elsa reluctantly emerges to claim the throne. Unfortunately, on her coronation day, her gloves come off and the locals witness her powers, brand her a witch and force her to flee into the snowy mountains.

Anna gives chase, leaving the kingdom in the hands of her trusted sweetheart Prince Hans (Santino Fontana). As she ascends towards Elsa's hideaway, Anna meets hunky ice trader Kristoff (Jonathan Groff), his loyal reindeer Sven and a blissfully naive talking snowman called Olaf (Josh Gad).

Frozen is one of the best animated features to canter out of the Disney stable in years.

Warm-hearted, uplifting and constantly surprising, it's a timeless fable that will appeal to both boys and girls thanks to uproarious comic relief from Olaf (who is too cute for words).

Drive for green space

HAVING a place to park a car by your home is important, there's no arguing that. But it is more important than having an open green space to welcome you, visitors and nature to your front door?

As traffic increases and time-hungry householders opt to pave or concrete their driveway to avoid garden maintenance, there's little doubt the state of our front gardens is spiralling downwards.

Yet, points out horticulturist Joe Swift, pictured right, the front garden should be the first point of a welcoming haven.

Swift, one of many gardening experts appearing in Great British Garden Revival, a new 10-part BBC2 series starting on Monday, visited one such haven in award-winning Rockcliffe Avenue, Whitley Bay, north Tyneside, where residents have transformed their paved street with colourful plants and containers overflowing with flowers.

The result isn't just aesthetic, residents have also reported a much greater sense of community, with kids no longer 'causing havoc' in the street and people no longer dropping litter.

"A lot of people just concrete or pave their gardens over and just forget about the plants, but research shows how important plants are in reducing pollution, for wellbeing and house prices," says Swift.

Creating a planting buffer between your home and traffic is also like putting a filter paper between you and the pollution, explains Rob MacKenzie, professor of atmospheric science at Birmingham University.

"If you put plants very close to the traffic then they have a greater chance of soaking up the pollution and making a significant reduction, perhaps as much as 10 or 20%," he explains.

Some three-quarters of households in Britain have cars – 40% of those have two cars – and the increased use of concrete or paving to accommodate them has led to huge drainage problems in some areas.

Swift says there are products out there which can accommodate both plants and vehicles. In the BBC programme, he looks at reinforced hexagonal plastic mesh which goes into the ground, and you can park your car on it when it has been filled with either gravel or plants. You lay it by firstly putting landscaping fabric over the soil to allow water to drain through and suppress weeds. Then place a layer of sand on to the fabric and embed your mesh into it. Then you fill your hexagonal slots with loamy topsoil and sand, which is perfect for sowing grass seed. Sow the seed in late summer, early autumn or spring. Before long, the grass will be growing above the mesh, but you can drive a car over it. Alternatively, use gravel or use a combination of gravel and grass seed or other low-growing plant, like thyme or camomile. "It's a way of softening the ground but still making it durable and tough enough to drive a car on. There are several products out there and you can get them online."

Herbaceous ground cover like hardy geraniums and alchemilla mollis are pretty tough and can easily be incorporated into many front gardens, he notes.

"If your front garden is in a shady area you could go for plants like hostas and ferns, anything that can take a bit of a battering and which you can get into the ground."

He also recommends planting strongly scented plants in your front garden such as Christmas box, a really tough evergreen which you will notice as you enter or leave your front garden every day.

"Wintersweet is another good scented plant, as are a lot of winter flowering viburnums which can fill the whole street with an incredible fragrance."

Joe Swift appears in the first episode of Great British Garden Revival, starting on BBC2 on Monday at 7pm.

Electric option 'not turning buyers on'

GOVERNMENT support for electric cars appears to be failing to spark off real interest from drivers, according to a survey of more than 3,000 motorists.

Only 1 per cent of UK drivers own an alternative fuel vehicle (AFV), while CO2 emissions are at the bottom of the checklist when Britons are shopping for a new car, the poll by Auto Trader found.

Since January 2011, motorists have been eligible for up to £5,000 upfront cost relief on the purchase of a new electric vehicle but the survey showed that 35 per cent of drivers were unaware of this grant.

While 32 per cent of 17 to 24-year-olds said they were likely to buy an AFV, only 18 per cent of those aged 65 or over were likely to. The survey also showed that while 62 per cent of women said they cared deeply about the impact their cars had on the environment, only 39 per cent of men did.

The poll also found:
■ 79 per cent of motorists agree the Government

ELECTRIC CHARGING POINT: But potential buyers want far more before considering whether to make the switch should be doing more to make AFVs more affordable

■ 89 per cent would like their vehicle to be more environmentally friendly if it did not cost any extra

■ 80 per cent have not seen a charging point within five miles of their home and 73 per cent want more charging points

■ 73 per cent said national TV campaigns would help spread the word about AFVs, while 52 per cent said AFVs should be a compulsory section in the driving theory test

Auto Trader group marketing director Jonathan Williams said: "The good news for car manufacturers is British motorists are taking an interest in electric vehicles - when made aware of the benefits and cost savings. However, we're still a long way from convincing motorists to make the switch.

"Put simply, going green is not currently an attractive package. UK motorists are being asked to make huge compromises on aesthetics, investment of their time finding and charging their vehicle. It's no wonder why, on top of all of these factors, a higher upfront purchase price is too much of an ask.

"Therefore, despite a £400 million investment and a further £500 million on its way in 2015 from the Government, motorists are still lacking information on costs, efficiency and effectiveness of owning electric vehicles - and, simply, choice. Clearly not enough is being done to incentivise both manufacturers and consumers."

Mazda3 residuals look great

BUSINESSES taking delivery of the all-new Mazda3, which goes on sale in January, will be making an excellent choice as depreciation rates in cash terms are among the best in the sector taking account of both volume and premium badge rivals.

Data from vehicle information providers CAP suggests that at the fleet benchmark of three years/60,000 miles, the all-new Mazda3 will retain up to 37 per cent of its value - comfortably out-performing key competitors.

The all-new Mazda3 will be available in two body styles - hatchback and Fastback (saloon). The 36-strong model range offers SKYACTIV technology as standard - the SKYACTIV-G 1.5-litre 100ps petrol engine delivers up to 55.4mpg, with emissions from 119g/km.

The valuation experts predict that the residual value pacesetters will be the 2.0-litre 5dr hatchback 120ps SE petrol (£16,940) retaining 35 per cent/£5,950.

Dan puts the seal on points

Haverhill Rovers moved up to third in the table as they banished the memory of their midweek loss to Newmarket by taking all three points at Norwich United with a 2-0 success in the Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division.

The first goal was scored in the 10th minute, Jack Wilkinson whipping in a decent cross from the left that was missed by the three players at the front post and the unfortunate Scott Woodgate deflecting it into his own net.

The lead was doubled in the 38th minute following a well-constructed break down the Haverhill left.

Andrew Ofosu's cross came out to Dan Cornwell, who chested the ball forward and Dan Jeffrey took the chance, while off balance, to beat the goalkeeper from 15 yards out.

Norwich almost came back into the game two minutes later, but Paul Cook, who had the goal in his sights, was denied by Rovers goalkeeper Jamie Greygoose, who made a good one-handed save.

In the First Division, Haverhill Borough won their first league game since the middle of October thanks to a hard-fought 2-0 success over 10-man Braintree reserves.

Aaron Forshaw was scythed down by Lee Cullen when through on goal, with the Braintree centre-back receiving a red card for his challenge.

The deadlock was finally broken in the 62nd minute following a powerful run by debutant Ash Drew, who enabled Luke Strutton to fire into the net, and Forshaw added the second 16 minutes later with a deflected shot.

Purser and Santry edge out Celts

AZTECS came out on top in a close game against Cambridge Celts after edging a 2-1 win in Cambridgeshire Mini Soccer League 10C.

Aztecs took an early lead when a Celts defender turned a Bart Purser corner into his own net. Midway through the half Celts equalised again from a corner which was headed home.

Just as the sides looked to be going into the interval level a fine break down the right saw Alex Sam feed Ethan Hallam whose cross found Ollie Santry, and although his initial shot was saved he followed up on the rebound.

The second half continued in much the same vein, but neither side was able to add to their goal tally.

Finley Plant plundered a hat-trick as West Watting beat Newmarket Town 5-0 in BM Kempton 9v9 Youth League 12A.

Jack Lisher was also on target twice for Watting to help them take a comfortable win.

No Pot luck for Ben

BEN Potter was the overall winner of the December Men's Medal and Turkey Trot at Haverhill Golf Club.

Some excellent scores were returned from across all divisions, but Potter's nett 67 in Division Two saw him earn the plaudits and reduce his handicap by one to 12.

Steve Rex was second in Division Two with 70 and Allen O'Donoghue was third with 71.

In Division One, Steve Miller was first with nett 69, one better than Jack Bligh with Kim Ward third with 71.

And the winner in Division Three was Kelvin Ellam with nett 68, as Paul Chapman pipped Leonard Sanders to second on countback after both shot 72.

Alaistar Cocks was the clear winner of the Men's IFF Stableford Challenge with 40 points in Division Two.

Nicky Weller was first in Division One with 37 and Keith Whitfield took Division Three with 34. Haverhill assistant professional Ollie Rush captained the winning team of Haverhill's Mick Warren and David Pipe and Stoke by Nayland's Les Norman in the Suffolk Winter Alliance Pro-Am at Hintlesham.

The team (above) scored 86 points, but needed countback to see off the challenge of Haverhill's Simon Cousins and Dennis Harkness and Stoke by Nayland's Les Norman, and the team of Bury Driving Range's Neil Mitchell and a trio from Hintlesham.

Stowmarket's Sam Forgan was the winner of the individual pro event with 69, with Mitchell in second with 71 and Haverhill's Paul Wilby and Rush in third with 73.
